I dedicate this book to the Holy Spirit,
thanks for your whispers.

I pray this book might give you strength, when you are low and know all we have to do, is whisper His name, God, then He'll be there in an instant.

Also thank you to Landra for getting me back on my path.
Thank you to my Mom and others through this time. May the Holy Spirit fill your soul, like it has filled my soul.

Your Love

Your love is what I am pursuing to just be in its presence makes me feel like there is nothing I can't do.

You love us even when we turn our backs to you.

Please help me from doing that and make the bond we share grow stronger every day.

By the small wonders in this world you created for us show us signs of your love that we can show others.

Please lead me to those who are in need of your grace and unfailing love so I can bring them up and show them your love.

Let your words flow through my mouth in those times where your wisdom is needed.

Let the path I leave this world be one that others can find and follow to receive your love and hold on to it even in the dark times.

Knowing once they have accepted you in their life there will always be a light to chase away the darkness.

And give me the courage to face those adversaries
who stand against your love and give me patience with those who doubt your love is real.

Blind

God I pray that you open our eyes to your glory and show us what we can't see.

You are the voice I hear warning me before
I do something God would not like.

Help me see your works through the simple act of praying for someone in need and hear they found what they were looking for.

You are the gentle nudge I need to go and make the first move and say hi.

You are the inspiration to write my poems and I thank you.

You make those who are seeking refuge find safety from those who mean them harm.

You are there to stop us when the damage is already done as well when we should apologize.

Please open the eyes of my fellow Christians
so they find their way back to you.

I Wonder

As I lay here, I wonder how long I will have to wait till our paths cross again.

I wonder if you even remember who I am,
even in this crowded world.

I wonder if your life is as lonely as mine where you pour out all this good karma and get nothing in return.

I wonder, are you even out there,
should I just give up on waiting and put my blinders up on you.

I wonder why some people have to struggle in life
and others have nothing to worry about.

I wonder, why did you put me in this chair.

I wonder if I will ever have a life without this pain in my butt.

I wonder why she can't love me like I love her.

I wonder what this world would be like if I was gone.
